

Who We Are

Royer Mansion is situated in the southwest corner of Woodbury Township in Blair County, PA which is nestled between Lock Mountain and Tussey Mountain. The mansion is located on a hill just east of Piney Creek and fronting Route 866 which connects Williamsburg and Martinsburg.

Research shows that half of the mansion may have been built by William Young as early as 1790. By 1815 the land and home were in the possession of the Samuel Royer family and the iron furnace was added to the tax rolls. In addition to the iron furnace and mansion the Royer's owned 3,282 acres of unseated land listed as the Barrens Mountain Ground with timber reserves for charcoal, ore, and limestone, to produce iron. Samuel Royer died in 1856 the furnace lands remained in the control of the heirs of the Daniel Royer family until 1885.

Help Keep Royer Mansion Alive!

Royer Mansion has undergone a major restoration and has been brought back to life with period appropriate furnishings, colors, and antiques. Our mission is to preserve the heart of Morrisons Cove and be an attraction and venue to our neighbors in the communities of south-central Pennsylvania.

But a lot more needs to be done to continue to keep this historic house for the eyes of future generations.
